

My wife and I are both business professionals and have had our cell phone numbers printed on our business communications (cards, stationary, etc.). We both have had the same cell phone numbers for many years. Right now are being held captive by our cell phone service provider. If we change providers, our clients may be hard pressed to find us. We feel we should be able to carry our cell phone numbers across provider company lines (no pun intended).